

Sangsoo LEE graduated from Peking University in 2006 where He holds a Ph.D. of the Northeast Asian Studies. His Ph.D. thesis dealt with China, Japan and Korea's Energy Policy Comparative Studies and was entitled: "A Study on Oil Crises and China, Japan, and Korea's Energy Measures". His areas of interest are focused on East Asian Regional Cooperation and Conflict Prevention in Northeast Asia.

He also is a Visiting Researcher at the Northeast-Asia Institute of Peking University and worked at the Council on East Asian Community Department of Japan Forum On International Relations, INC in 2005 and the Comparative Regional Integration Studies Program of the United Nation University (UNU-CRIS) in 2006. He is fluent in Korean, Chinese, Japanese, and advanced level in English and has good knowledge in Italian.